Mini-jails envisioned for county

Alameda County Bureau
Could the current flap over the sprawling Santa Rita jail lead to a series of small, community jails scattered throughout the county: mini-jails in Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin and communities west of the hills to hold those now housed at the county facility?
North county supervisors Fred Cooper and John George think the idea worth exploring. Cooper this week made his first foray into the county's six northern cities.

In a sweeping letter to the cities of Oakland, Berkeley, Emeryville, Piedmont, Albany and Alameda, Cooper is asking city councils for their comments on the idea.

As an alternate to the proposed 575-bed jail next to the municipal courts in downtown Oakland, Cooper is suggesting 10 to 20 "community facilities scattered throughout Northern Alameda County."

With the board of supervisors' recent defeat of a proposal to build another 500-bed jail in Hayward to serve the south county, it may not be long before the same question is asked of Valley cities.

The idea first was suggested by supervisor George, whose election campaign last year relied heavily on pledges of no new jail construction.

He and Cooper abstained earlier this month when the board voted 3-0 to approve plans for the Oakland jail.

Cooper said he took his cue from George, who "wants to look at other alternatives."

"I'm skeptical," Cooper said, "but trying to keep an open mind."

The mini-jails would hold 20 to 30 inmates awaiting trial, not those convicted and sentenced.

Analysis

Sentenced inmates ostensibly would serve their time at a refurbished Santa Rita jail since by state law the sentenced and unsentenced must be separated at all times.

People in the mini-jails "could perhaps be programmed to allow detainees to leave and visit their families from time to time on a strictly supervised schedule," Cooper says in his letter.

If the costs were greater than those at the massive Oakland jail, Cooper wants to know if the cities would be willing to bear some of them. The local facilities, he argues, would be "nearer to your police station (and) would reduce the transportation costs and the amount of time your officers would spend escorting arrestees."

None of the cities has yet formulated a reply, according to their city managers and mayors. Most have it scheduled for this week's meeting.

Berkeley, Albany and Alameda already have jails, but prisoners are turned over to the county sheriff at the first court appearance.

Livermore's 24-person jail would never be adequate should the plan become county wide, said Livermore Police Capt. Joseph Nichols.

Pleasanton is even worse shape. The Livermore jail is new, but the department is prepared to keep people only overnight, said Nichols.

"It's a question of manpower," he said. "We can keep them for 24-hours maximum without having a full-time jailer."

- That, too, is state law.

"It would just open us to a lot of problems," echoed Pleasanton Director of Public Safety Walt McCloud.

Pleasanton police take most of the people they arrest directly to Santa Rita where they are booked and either released on bail or their own recognizance, or held until their first court appearance.

But skeptics think Cooper's letter is intended to draw negative replies from the six cities. Jails, especially those "localized" in the communities, are as popular as the drought.

Fired scientist fights LLL

Seeks public invitation for hearing

LIVERMORE — A former Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employee has begun a precedent-setting legal battle against his previous employer in Alameda County Superior Court.

Szilard Szabo, a computer scientist with the Lab until his abrupt termination Sept. 10 of last year, is battling to open his upcoming grievance hearing to the public.

Management discharged Szabo for alleged "questionable activities," which he says were not specified, and unsatisfactory performance.

The 35-year-old Szabo argues that he was fired due to an alleged attempted cover-up of poor management, which he claims has cost taxpayers more than $1 million during his involvement in creating a computer language system.

Lab management claims Szabo made "unsatisfactory performance" in his duties as head of a 10-person group creating the computer system, and placed him on probation May 14, 1976.

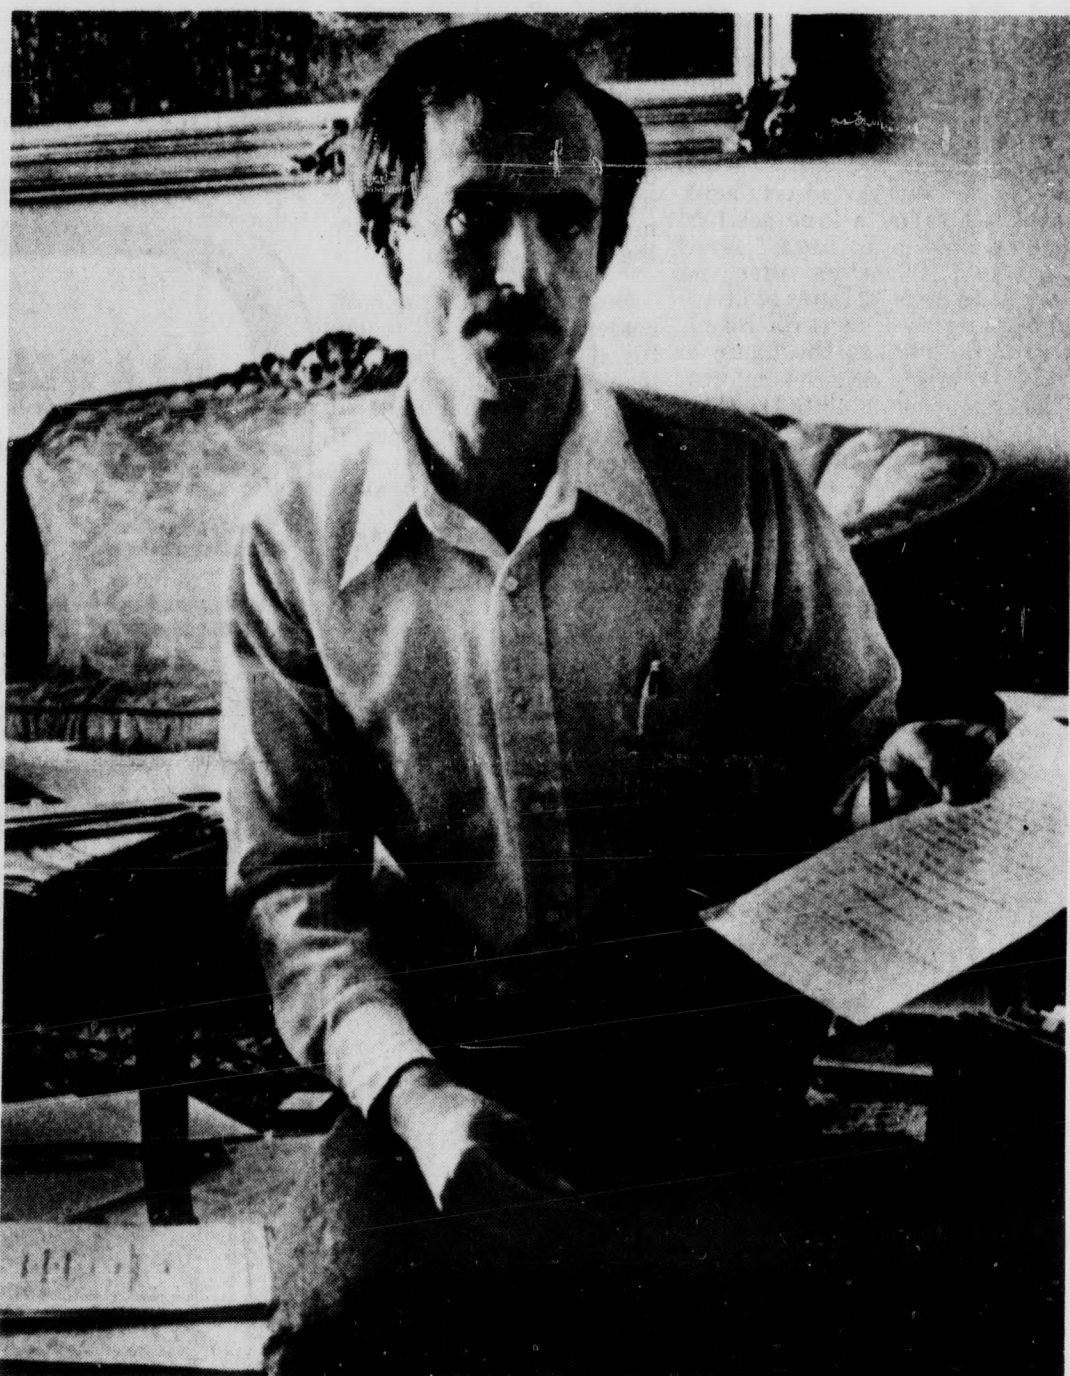

Assigned to a different sub-group for a "fresh evaluation," Szabo says he completed three times the amount of work assigned to him and received excellent appraisals of his work from management during the probation period, but received a 30-day termination notice Aug. 23 despite this.

While reportedly trying to gather information on the dismissal by speaking with colleagues and attempting to examine relevant documents, he received a notice of immediate termination Sept. 10. He was escorted to his desk, cleaned out his personal belongings and left.

Szabo filed a formal grievance and requested all documents relevant to the case. A three-man hearing panel was to convene Feb. 16 to hear the case.

He claims that one-half of the documents requested were not delivered until one day before the hearing, and asked that it be postponed so the other material could be delivered to him and consumed before the hearing began.

The panel chairman denied his request, and Szabo's lawyer filed suit in superior court the same day to

Dublin meet will explore incorporation

DUBLIN — People interested in the proposed incorporation of Dublin are invited by the Dublin Chamber of Commerce to air their views Monday, 7:30 p.m. in the main room at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Drive, Dublin.

According to chamber vice president Dave Burton, the purpose of the meeting will be to establish what incorporation means in terms of taxes, police services and control over planning, zoning, budget and growth.

Burton, a Rotarian, is Coordinator of the proposed incorporation movement.

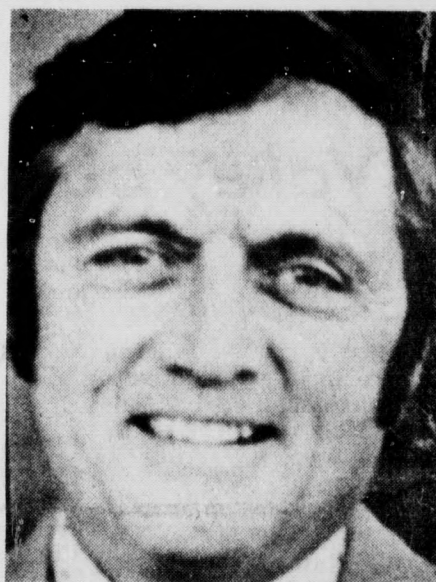

Chamber directors have stated the chamber as a body is neither pro or con on the incorporation issue.

Their aim is to gather facts and make them available to the public.

Burton said five operating committees will be set up during the March 21 session. Their duties will be to study the best way to organize various phases of the proposed town. Committee chairman will form the executive committee that will be responsible for coordinating the various committee's activities.

Committee number one will be Political. It will determine political structure, administration, manpower needed and will investigate legal requirements necessary to becoming incorporated.

Number two will be Planning. That committee will determine boundaries of the proposed incorporated area, set up standards and procedures for zoning, planning, business development and propose the best facilities for a town center.

Dave Burton

Number three is Contract Services. During initial stages of the proposed incorporation, Burton said it would be advisable to contract all community services requiring technically trained manpower and specialized equipment.

Number four is Budget and Finances. This committee will be responsible for establishing what revenues and income can be expected from various taxing agencies, federal and state subdivisions and revenue sharing. They will make a proposed budget for next year based on "input" from other committees.

Number five is Election Planning and Promotion. Planning will be required for a possible election in November 1977.

Auto crash kills woman on Foothill

PLEASANTON — Caroline Andriel, 75, of 7762 Fairbrook Court, was killed in a two-car collision at noon Friday on Foothill Road and Stoneridge Drive.

Andriel's husband, Domingues, 75, and Janice Foster, 34, and her son Matthew, 5, were injured in the accident.

The California Highway Patrol said that Foster was northbound in a 1975 Buick Skyhawk when Andriel made a sudden left turn in front of her vehicle. She tried to veer to the right, but hit the Andriel 1970 Chevrolet broadside.

It was the second fatal accident in two weeks on Foothill Road. Two students were killed March 5 when a car went out of control at more than 80 miles per hour and hit a tree.

Amador teachers call on public

Some 150 Amador Valley Joint High School District teachers will gather at a joint districts' "crisis center" this morning to pickup 14,000 leaflets for distribution door-to-door this afternoon throughout Pleasanton and Dublin.

The leafletting and announcement of a strike date (Thursday, April 14) are the latest actions in a continuing struggle between administration and teacher unit leadership over contract issues.

Mediator Mike West, assigned to the district by the Educational Employment Relations Board, is forwarding both sides' request for fact-finding... though teacher unit leadership has repeatedly expressed little faith in such an action.

Dave Woolworth, president of the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association, said the April 14 date would give the representative council plenty of time to assess the administration's handling of fact-finding in the Pleasanton Joint School District.

The district must make public before the end of the month the determinations of the fact-finder. The Amador teacher unit leadership may implement a walkout on the 14th if it believes the district is not adhering to fact-finding, even though it is specifically advisory in nature and not binding on either party.

Binding arbitration of grievances remains the stumbling block to a settlement, along with percentage of increase in salary and benefits.

cash in the suspect's wallet, and found a gold ring inscribed "LoH" in his pocket. Police said the ring matches the description of a ring stolen from "My Son's Jewelry Store" on the island of Maui. "LoH" reportedly stands for "Lapidary of Hawaii."

Police are looking for a second suspect in the case.

City views DMV plans

PLEASANTON — Council Member Ken Mercer turned heads briefly last week at the council meeting when he said that two local realtors felt the city staff meddled in the site selection for a new Department of Motor Vehicles office in this city.

But there was a happy ending to the allegations as the council adopted a policy stating that future civic buildings preferably should be located in the civic center, though that's not a must.

Mercer said that two real estate sales persons told him that the city staff gave DMV the impression that no sites but the city's own land in the civic center would be acceptable as a location for the subregional center, expected to be built in two to five years.

Not true, said Acting City Manager Alan Campbell. The city prepared sketches of the land around city center, but it has nothing for sale. "We just talked about a land swap," said Campbell, not naming the parcels involved.

The new policy states it is the city's policy "to encourage" public agencies to build their new buildings "within or adjacent to the Pleasanton Civic Center."

New auto dealership

Dublin may get a fourth auto dealership.

Prospective owners Kenneth C. Harvey and Richard D. Madding have applied for a conditional use permit for a Honda auto center that would go behind Shamrock Ford on Amador Plaza Road.

Garbage pickup hike?

A public hearing on Pleasanton Garbage Service's request for a collection rate increase was set last week for the city council meeting April 13.

The firm wants to increase single can service from $3.09 to $4.22 and two can service from $4.92 to $6.72 per month. Loose yard container rate would rise from $3.47 to $4.74.

The increase amounts to 36 per cent and in part is caused by expenses involved in the company's garbage transfer station, the first of its kind in the count.

Pleasanton cuts water use

The first two months of the year showed a marked downturn in water use, according to figures released by Acting Pleasanton City Manager Alan Campbell.

In January of this year, water consumption stood at approximately 100 million gallons, 30 million gallons lower than January of the previous year.

In February figures dropped from 105 million gallons to 95 million gallons.

Tamarac to get cross guard

Alameda County will hire a crossing guard for what parents fear will be a hazardous intersection at Tamarac Drive and Village Parkway. The guard will start in September when the Murray School District redistricts Fredericksen and Fallon schools.

County intervention came from supervisor Valerie Raymond after parents called to complain of the anticipated problem. She has asked the county road department to "make an exception to their usual procedure" and conduct the study while the guard is working.

"Additional highway restrictions" will be built if warranted by the, according to Raymond's office.

The guard will work in the morning, at lunch, and at the end of the school day.

Valley man tied to Hawaii heist when police find ring — $1,070

LIVERMORE — An 18-year-old Livermore man is being held in lieu of $50,000 bail after police found a gold ring on the suspect that is suspected of being stolen in a $400,000 jewelry heist Feb. 21 in Hawaii.

Fred Sanders Matheny of 1428 Elm St. was booked on suspicion of felony possession of stolen property after his arrest Wednesday, police reported Friday.

Det. Dan Killeen of the Livermore Police Department conducted an investigation which led to the issuance of a search warrant. At about 10 p.m. Wednesday, FBI agents joined Livermore police in executing the search warrant on Matheny, who was stopped while driving his pick-up truck westbound on East Avenue at Buena Vista.

Police allegedly discovered $1,070

City okays Las Positas 2-lane span

PLEASANTON — The city council committed itself to going for more last week in the form of a two-lane overcrossing instead of a pedestrian-only overcrossing discussed earlier for Las Positas Boulevard at Interstate 680.

The council committed Federal Aid Urban project funds for the two-lane vehicle overcrossing, which also will have pedestrian and bike lanes.

The council also voiced some hope that a bill by Assemblyman Floyd Mori of Pleasanton to fund the overpass will be successful this year. In that case the FAU funds would be transferred to another project.

The commitment expressed last week by the council was $278,446 for overpass development, a fraction of the $1.5 million total cost for the two-lane vehicle overcrossing.

An overcrossing for pedestrians only would cost approximately $500,000, but Director of Engineering Services Don Sooby recommended that this alternative be scrapped because it is not cost-effective.

A pedestrian overcrossing which could be expanded to two lanes or four lanes later would cost an estimated $800,000. All of the estimates by the state highway department are at least two years old.

Two FAU fund commitments were renewed by the council last week: $41,500 for a traffic signal at First and Neal Streets, and $164,500 for improvements at the intersection of Valley Avenue and Santa Rita Road.

San Ramon pool opens

Left, Mike Fink, assistant aquatics manager and lifeguard, and Ron Helder, diving instructor and lifeguard for the Valley Community Services District Recreation Department get set for another swimming season at the San Ramon Olympic Pool at California High School. The pool is adjacent to the high school at 9870 Broadmoor Drive in San Ramon. Beginning this weekend, the pool will be available to area residents from 12 noon to 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday — weather permitting. For further information, call the VCSD Recreation Department at 828-7711.

Dublin bowling hubs grow

DUBLIN — The competitive towel will be tossed smack in the middle of 80 bowling lanes in Dublin as soon as Dublin Bowl adds its 40 alleys to the 40 Amador Valley Lanes in operation since March 12, 1977.

April 15 is the proposed opening date of Dublin Bowl, according to its general manager, Bob Jones. It is located adjacent to Howard Johnsons on Regional Street in Dublin.

Amador Valley Lanes, under the management of Bob Tetak, is on Dougherty Road behind K-Mart.

Although each bowling center has the same number of lanes and the basic building layout is identical, each manager said they had "their own private plans" in mind to help pull business their way.

Appeal through decor, quality of service and friendliness of staff were some of the more obvious methods they said would be used.

Dublin was chosen as a site by the builders of both bowling centers since marketing research indicated there were not enough lanes to service the general area.

Tetak and Jones said they were reasonably sure the Tri-Valley population of 121,400 would provide adequate business for both centers.

"A general rule of thumb is to allow a lane per 1000 people in an area," Jones said. "So even after you add in the 32 lanes at Livermore's Granada Bowl, which brings the figure to 112 lanes, we can comfortably accommodate 112,000 in this area."

Both managers said they thought the competition would benefit people in the Valley.

"Wholesome competition such as this helps keep quality on a high level," Tetak said.

Although both managers said they would be pulling for their own team, they thought Tri-Valley residents were fortunate to have two of the nicest and newest bowling centers in the world available.

Besides the alleys, both centers offer play rooms for the kiddies, cocktail lounges for the non-kiddies, professional staff to help teach bowling, special rates for special groups, and many other courtesies.

SRV board responds to teachers

DANVILLE — The San Ramon Valley Unified School District's 55-page response to the teacher union's initial contract proposal will be presented and a public hearing held Monday.

The San Ramon school board will convene at 7:30 p.m. at the Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Dr.

San Ramon Valley Educators Association (SRVEA) presented their contract proposal, tied to a three-year contract, almost a month ago. The document is 99 pages in length.

Among the items to be considered is a quotation award for reconstruction of Neil Armstrong School in San Ramon. Most of the Armstrong School students have attended Walt Disney since an arson fire at Armstrong last October.

The board's response to the teacher contract proposal will be followed by second reading on the developers' policy.

Trustees are also slated to reject a bid and authorize the rebidding of smoke detection systems for various schools in the district.

Other items and reports scheduled include: Graduation requirements study, the San Ramon Valley District writing project, district nutrition committee's nutrition guidelines.

County studies mini-jail plan

The letter also can be taken as a warning to south county cities that losing the massive Hayward jail raises the specter of mini-jails throughout their communities.

And once the large, downtown Oakland jail is built, additional pressure can be expected from south county residents and professionals who still must travel to Santa Rita to see family and clients.

Unless Pleasanton and Livermore can get the county to maintain facilities for the unsentenced at a rebuilt Santa Rita, the cities may have to join their neighbors west of the hills in choosing between large, centralized jails in Hayward and at the proposed East County Government Center, or a series of small, community based jails.

"Would your council approve the location of one or more such facilities in your community?" Cooper asks. "Would you approve them only if they were located in the industrial area away from residential areas?"

The Santa Rita site is going to come down. And its replacement probably will be reserved almost exclusively for those serving their sentences, not those awaiting trial.

Fired scientist fights dismissal

postpone the hearing.

On March 1, Szabo asked the University of California, which runs the Lab for the Energy Research and Development Administration, to open the hearing to the public and subpoena expert witnesses. UC refused to open the hearings publicly (both parties must agree) and said it did not have the power to subpoena.

Szabo again went to court, asking for a writ of mandate to force the subpoenas and open the hearing to the public. UC lawyers have until April 15 to show cause why they should not do so.

After filing for unemployment benefits, Szabo said Lab personnel gave information that was allegedly false and delayed his application for the temporary funds. He termed the information "totally false" and said he had documents to prove it was without factual basis.

When heroes were heroes

What makes a hero? Today a lot of kids find lollipop-sucking Telly Savalas worthy of such lofty status, while girls everywhere are furiously growing their hair, hoping they'll catch on like Farah Fawcett-Majors.

Radio buff George Metz just shakes his head at today's ideals, recalling his wondrous childhood when heroes were good at everything, never goofed and looked just like you thought they should!

A mechanical designer at the Lawrence Livermore Lab by day, George re-lives Captain Midnight's hair-raising adventures by night, often throwing in some of Fibber McGee's slapstick humor for good measure.

Scheduled to enthrall the singles group at Anthropos Friday, March 25, George enjoys sharing his old radio programs with others almost as much as he loves tuning in on Charley McCarthy. Open to the public at a $2 charge, Mixers will meet from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. at 1818 Catalina Ct. in Livermore.

"Old radio programs bring back a lot of memories," sighs George, who also depends on them to remember turning points in his life. "I use them to remember by," the bachelor says, "like the time I made my first model airplane."

An avid collector of radio programs dating back to the 1940's, Metz abandoned stamp collecting four years ago when KSFO broadcasted a series of golden oldies. "I immediately withdrew from the world to record them for myself," laughs George.

Several hundred dollars of recording equipment later, the wireless enthusiast had located other collectors who would willingly trade a W.C. Fields rib tickler for an Amos 'n Andy program.

Now the happy owner of over 100 cassettes, Metz admits that radio can be as addictive as television. As a child he listened to broadcasts up to five hours a day, but "school broke in, of course, which was unfortunate!"

The Anthropos program will include an overview of everyone's favorite memories, ranging from Bob Hope's stabs at current events to one liners from Jack Benny. For more information call 443-1818.

Pleasanton one step ahead on conflict codes

PLEASANTON — No one showed up Friday at a public hearing designed for city employees to discuss the new conflict of interest code which will apply to them, but the reason apparently was not apathy.

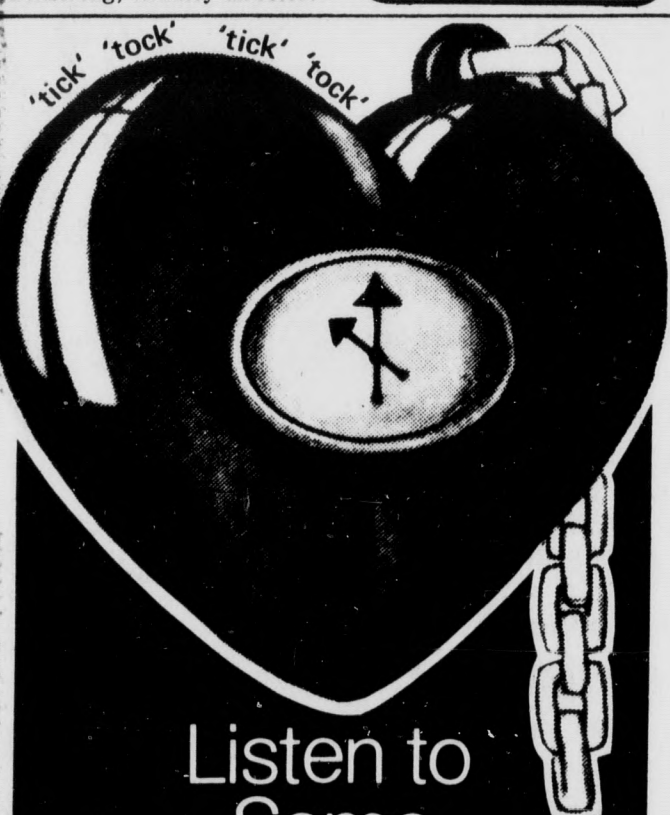

Deputy City Attorney Harvey Levine has talked to nearly all employees to be affected by the code and his interviews apparently obviated the need for any employees to attend the hearing scheduled for 10 a.m.

Levine told the two reporters assembled that the conflict of interest code designates various city positions as having potential conflicts of interest in certain areas. The code will inform the employees which areas they could have a conflict in any given decision and it will be up to them to abstain from making decisions in those areas if they could materially benefit from the decision.

There is only one exception to this general policy. If a city employee by law must take an action, then that law supercedes the conflict of interest law. For example, if the statute says the city engineer must sign a map, he or she must do so, even if the map amounts to a conflict of interest.

There will be a public hearing at the city council meeting March 28 when the council will consider adopting the code.

WHITNEY BIENNIAL
NEW YORK (AP) — The Whitney Museum of American Art recently announced the names of 40 painters, photographers and sculptors who have been invited to participate in the 1977 Whitney Biennial. The Biennial exhibit is of work done in the United States during the last two years and is devoted to work by artists who had their first decisive influence in the 1970s, said Tom Armstrong, Whitney director.

Murray citizen advisors spur lease of surplus classrooms

The reconstituted Citizens Advisory Committee will recommend rental or lease of surplus classroom space at both Dublin and Nielsen schools at Monday night's Murray School District Board of Trustees meeting.

Board members will meet at 8 p.m. at Dublin School, 7997 Vornac Rd., Dublin.

The committee recommendations ask that the surplus classroom space be leased to the county and to Christian Center School. The latter would entail 10 classes at Dublin School.

On the following agenda item, the board is scheduled to adopt a resolution calling for leasing of the rooms at Dublin.

Other matters to be considered Monday night include:

A report from the Association of Low Wealth Schools, a lease agreement with Hoyfjellet Lodge for the Outdoor Education program, naming Darrel Carter, recently appointed business manager, chief accounting officer for the district, approval of a request for a loan of surplus furniture to Valley Child Care, and renewal of the district's contract for legal representation with the firm of Breen, Galgoni, and Godino.

Although 10 teachers in the district were due to receive "doomsday notices" this past week, in light of declining enrollment, the agenda makes no mention of this action. The teachers affected reportedly drew numbers in a lottery to determine their position in the event less than 10 must be let go. The lottery was conducted a week ago Friday.

Only certificated personnel item on the agenda is a listing of teachers eligible for tenure.

Notes from Chabot

Supt. salary boosted

South County Community College District Supt. Reed Buffington, the district's chief executive officer since its inception, was given a four-year contract with an increase to $46,000 a year by trustees last week.

Buffington is currently making $39,500 a year. Under terms of the new contract, Buffington will use his own car for district matters and pay expenses incurred in its use. Previously, he had the use of a car and was reimbursed for expenses.

He will also no longer receive a $1,000-a-year tax-free annuity.

The four year pact will be in effect from July 1 to June 30, 1981.

Buffington signed his previous contract with South County two years ago.

of gardening in relation to drought conditions. The instructor for the class will be Jacquie Williams.

Topics to be discussed will include: Water conservation and irrigation, landscaping with native plants, maintenance of existing landscapes, and methods of mulching to conserve moisture.

Students can register on Wednesday, March 30 from 6 to 9 p.m. at Valley Campus, 3033 Collier Canyon Rd., Livermore. Students can also register late on April 5 at the trailer office at Granada starting at 6:15 p.m.

The final two seminars which Chabot College has been sponsoring on Saturday mornings on real estate financing will be held March 19 and March 26. The March 19 session will include how to use second deeds of trust to close sales, the regulations that apply to such loans, who creates this type of financing and when they are available, and innovative ideas used as tools in real estate financing.

Panelists Saturday are Walter Ng, Ng Realtors; Robert Nathanson, branch manager of Wells Fargo Bank; and William Pimentel, secondary loan broker, Allied Brokers.

Those interested in the seminars may register between 8 and 8:30 a.m. on the 19th and 26 in Building 600 at Chabot College in Hayward. For information, call 782-3000, ext. 292 or 489.

Chabot College's Hayward campus will hold its second annual Community Day, open to the public, on June 4.

'Infancy' course offered

Amador Valley Adult Education is offering a new course on infancy, beginning Thursday, March 24 and continuing for eight weeks.

The class will be taught by Jean Marinko, and will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursdays at Amador Valley High School. Registration is $4 per person.

The class is for expecting parents, new parents, and anyone interested in gaining a knowledge of infancy.

Purpose is to offer some understanding of what infancy and the beginning of parenting is like. The course will explore the needs of parents and infants; how their needs match or conflict; how adults and infants can "live and let live together."

Topics will include: What can we do before the baby is born that will help our relationship later? What does it mean to truly respect my child, and how can this be carried out in the daily activities of dressing, feeding and bathing? How can I plan and set up an optimal environment for my child to grow in? What should I realistically expect of my child developmentally? What do we, as parents, want and expect from this child? What does our child have a right to expect from us?

For further information or pre-registration, call 462-5500, ext. 17.

As long as the older adult is healthy and independent little thought is given to what to expect when changes in his mind or body create the need for care.

There are choices that must be made when these problems occur. Should the older adult be placed in an institution or can he be cared for at home? What can be done to help him?

These are a few of the subjects to be covered in a Principles of Gerontology (30B) class which will soon begin at Chabot College Valley Campus.

The class will focus on the dependent older adult and the problems he has in our society including stresses, diseases, and lifestyle choices. The family's roles in helping him and ways of dealing with terminal illness and death will also be examined. Guest speakers, group projects, and films will be included in the format of this class.

The instructor, Isabel Mendonsa, received her Master's degree from Holy Names College where she majored in Gerontology. She is employed by the Area Agency on Aging in Contra Costa County.

Further information on registration and starting date can be had by calling Dr. Charles Brydon at the campus, 455-5300, ext. 34.

Due to popular demand, Chabot College - Valley Campus will offer again a four-week, one unit class entitled "Designing Drought-Tolerant Gardens and Their Maintenance." The class will begin on Tuesday, April 5 in Room 303 at Granada High School in Livermore. This class will cover all aspects

Dublin's choice

Every time there is a move in Dublin to consider incorporating that community as this Valley's third city, some one replies: "Maybe now's the time to talk about merging all of these communities into One Valley City."

The merits of "one fire department" or the "tax dollars to be saved with one Valley fire department" never look so good as when Dublin shows signs of going its own municipal way.

Yes, there is value in unification of the diverse and overlapping safety and utility services provided in this basin;

And yes, we could improve our chances in those far-off regional battles by speaking with one firm Valley voice, rather than the several whispers which now represent us.

But all that was true five years ago, and will be just as true five years from now, regardless of what Dublinites do with their community. The failure of three governmental bodies within this basin to work together through a medium as simple as COVA, or to agree on a pipeline's size through LAVVMA, does not offer much hope for anything so bold as "One Valley City."

Dublin, as it stands right today, has far more people, more taxable wealth, more complete services than did either Livermore or Pleasanton when those two "villages" opted for city status, almost a century ago. It is pride, not political wisdom, which motivates any society to band together as one city.

There are arguments for and against the incorporation of "City of Dublin" in 1977. The Dublin Chamber of Commerce respects that conflict, and that is why the chamber has called for a series of "Town Hall Meetings" on the question, beginning Monday evening at Shannon Community Center.

We urge all Dublinites to participate in those sessions, to listen, and to ask hard questions. If the time is right, Dublin might then vote on incorporation.

And after that is decided, one way or another, the three urban forces within the Amador - Livermore Valley can start talking seriously about "How best do we get together?"

The week in retrospect

Man's inhumanity

The past week has been another busy one for news but no story came across as profound and searing as that told by a little lady in a classroom at Amador Valley High School Thursday.

For the two dozen or so students in the class, it was history come to life ... albeit a sordid period of history from a time many years before any of these students were born.

As reported on Page 1 of The Times Friday, Frances Fabri survived the death and labor camps of Nazi Germany, specifically Auschwitz.

Her story is not unlike those of hundreds of thousands of other Jewish people who lived to tell about the tortures and atrocities that were a part of Auschwitz, Bergen-Belsen and Dachau. Mrs. Fabri's situation was a bit different, though, in that she was just 14 years old at the time.

Her memory of this scar on the face of history is indelible. She remembers the day in Budapest, Hungary when the German soldiers came, the herding into the box cars for the long, stifling journey north across Hungary, glimpses of the Carpathian Mountains and, finally, the first glimpse of Auschwitz ... "row after row of barracks for as far as the eye could see."

What ensued for the next 10 months for Frances Fabri, from June 29, 1944 to April 13, 1945, was a living hell.

"You were in this impossible place, all alone, without any chance of seeing your family. It was like falling down, down, down, into a bottomless pit," she related to the young audience momentarily stunned into silence.

The bunks in the barracks were bereft of any mattresses or sheets. "I remembered laying there hoping to die, trying to grab for something. After a while I felt someone talking to me ... telling me not to let go, to live to see your family again."

From the camps in the Auschwitz complex, Frances later was sent to a labor camp in another part of Germany.

Jewish people were marked not only before they were taken to these camps but again when they arrived. Like hundreds of thousands of others, young Frances was held down and her head shaved bare.

But she was among the fortunate ones. The able-bodied were sent to labor camps to work for "the Third Reich." Millions of others were tortured to death or herded into the inhuman ovens.

"It is not a question of surviving but HOW you survive," she responded to a young questioner Thursday.

"Man's inhumanity to man CAN be balanced by man's humanity to man," she concluded.

It is up to each one of us to realize this choice and to determine which we will embrace.

Round the town

Anyone whose reading goes beyond the cereal box or the TV Guide is aware that this suburban vale is blessed with various and sundry newspapers.

Just how well blessed may be measured from a recent report in the Columbia Journalism Review. One of the findings in a detailed report by that distinguished magazine is that in all of the United States fewer than 50 cities are served by competing daily newspapers.

With two local dailies and one tri-weekly concentrated just within the area from San Ramon to Livermore, our Fourth Estate cup runneth over, so to speak. Neither does that include some fairly aggressive "local coverage" by daily newspapers originating in Oakland, Hayward and Walnut Creek.

There was a time when newspapers competed hot-and-heavy for readership and revenue in every major urban center across the land. Many will recall when San Francisco claimed no less than five daily newspapers, Oakland had two; a half-dozen weekly publications originated in Walnut Creek, that many more sprung out of Hayward.

High labor costs, diminishing returns on investments and a tightening of the advertising dollar all contributed to the demise of the smaller papers and the weaker dailies. But the real prod in more recent years has been the technology of newspapering, specifically the impact of the computer on the printed page.

There was a time when newspaper publishing was as mom-and-pop as the grocery store. "You can't print all of the country's newspapers in one big Detroit plant like you can turn out automobiles," news folk were fond of saying. They said much the same thing about the marketing of fresh vegetables and meat.

What refrigeration did to change America's food-purchasing habits, computer-technology has done to revise the look, and the control, of the nation's newspapers. We have yet to learn how that might also change America's reading habits, or the influence huge newspaper chains will have on our politics, our way of life.

The Journalism Review article recites just some of the facts about newspaper merger trends: the Gannett chain (largely smaller dailies) now numbers 73 publications; Thomas has 57, Knight-Ridder 34, Newhouse 30, and so on. The magazine further points out that, since "most of the better newspapers" have already been acquired by one chain or another, the game is now for larger publishing conglomerates to "buy up" smaller conglomerates.

This has already happened, of course, to the television industry which is largely controlled by just three networks, and those three in turn function as small part of some larger corporate entity. NBC is but a fraction of RCA's total holdings.

So what's all this to you or your local newspaper? Not much, at least not in the immediate future. I know of no attempts by major outside interests to merge one or all three of our "local" newspapers into some larger publishing family. There is however active bidding by major media corporations for the Oakland Tribune, one of the last family-owned single-publication dailies in any large American city.

More than any other people on earth, we Americans are alert to the news, impacted by its message, influenced by its powers of suggestion. The vitality, the spirited competition of that news flow is evident in these several suburban centers more than in 97 percent of the nation's "daily newspaper market areas."

The other day I sat in on a demonstration of video news transmission which might offer the next step in story composition and "printing" for our own publications. The sales people brought but one small "video terminal" as their demo piece; no bigger than a standard typewriter, with much the same keyboard plus the familiar "closed circuit" tv screen.

When that set was "plugged in" via a long distance telephone call to the manufacturer's head offices in Chicago, we were then able to compose stories, "store" them in a computer, "call them back" for major revision, and then assign one or all to a newspaper page ... without ever leaving that room, and through that single video display terminal.

What Chicago did for us in that demonstration, a single publishing house based in Los Angeles could do for a hundred "satellite" newspapers scattered up and down this state. The prospect for control of the nation's newspaper industry by a few conglomerates is as real as Detroit's hold on our auto-producing capabilities.

And that's what makes the spirited editorial and advertising competition within this one basin so unique. It is among the nation's last.

READERS WRITE ABOUT...

Teachers, taxpayers

Murray Supt.

(The following article was authored by Liz Ann Kendall, teacher representative, and Steve Wallace, parent representative, chairpersons of the Murray School District's Local Advisory Committee. The panel was formed to aid in selection of a new district superintendent.)

HELP WANTED!

The educational leadership for the 5,000 children of Murray School District, which is financed by approximately $7 million of your money, will be determined by the first of June.

The process will involve teachers, classified personnel, administrators, and, most importantly, the parents of the Murray School District. On Wednesday evening, the public was invited to express their views and give input to a Local Advisory Committee which has the task of hearing from members of all of the above groups. This meeting was attended by the LAC, Dr. Donald Leu, the district consultant, Donald Biddle, board member-elect, and seven parents. The parent representatives on this committee especially want your help and need your input.

A prepared Selective Criteria Outline has been established for your review and input and additional suggestions. This will take approximately 10 minutes of your time and will allow you to be heard by your committee. The forms are available at both your local schools and the district offices on Brighton Drive in Dublin. Although the return is early, it is necessary to insure the availability of premium candidates for this position.

The committee is meeting again next Tuesday and Wednesday, March 22 and 23, in open session at Fallon School at 4 p.m. Parents are invited to attend. Whether or not you attend this meeting, make your wishes known. Please call either of the two parents on the committee, Steve Wallace, 829-3532, or Larrie Christensen, 846-0729.

CTA challenged

Editor, The Times: The current struggle between the teachers' union and the taxpayers (the administration and board are answerable to them) illustrates a deep and growing contradiction in our society. ... The vote to call an illegal strike illustrates one of the severe sicknesses of the organized labor movement today and demonstrates what is wrong with the concept of public sector collective bargaining. ... When the government bureaucracies are unionized, democracy will have been defeated and the real rulers of the country will be the labor barons. ...

The students are getting a real lesson in Civics. ... When the students flout the authority of teachers, I hope the teachers remember where they learned it!

The call for binding arbitration is just another CTA power play in an attempt to erode local government control in the schools. The teachers don't need it. For those who think they have been personally abused by the administration, the civil courts are available and the union can help finance a lawyer. If they can't find an appropriate legal charge to bring then they have no legitimate complaint. Binding arbitration has always been abused by unions. ...

Teachers say they don't trust the administration or the board. Frankly, I don't trust their union either. ...

The teachers seem to think that step increases should be treated separately from cost of living raises. I see no reason for it. My salary certainly isn't treated that way. ...

As for the teachers charges of propaganda concerning the boards mailing to the taxpayers, I must point out that they had an opportunity to express their point of view in the mailing. One wonders why they failed to take advantage of the opportunity ... probably were aware they had no adequate rebuttal.

Support school board

Editor, The Times:

On March 7, I ... (received) a copy of a release from the Amador Joint Union High School District Board updating me on their negotiations. ... I then picked up the March 6 copy of the Valley Times and was instantly assaulted by the collective letters from one Mr. Zach and another a letter signed by diverse persons. ...

1. The Board's release regarding general binding arbitration and its ... impact on the total operation of the district is entirely correct. ... arbitrators can and do interpret agreements in a manner that is not necessarily consistent with the intent of either parties to the negotiations.

2. I do not agree with the teachers that the general public realizes that the district is not endangered by an across the board arbitration clause. ...

3. I am in full accord with the need for security guards and protection of school property during non-working hours. High schools have been vandalized, fire bombed and otherwise destroyed at a great cost to the taxpayers. ...

4. C.B. Zach would have us believe that the School Board commands the teachers to sign a contract to sign a contract to their liking. ... A 9% increase in wages and benefits as well as other substantial changes in working conditions is a contract that would certainly not be to my liking if I was making such an offer. ...

5. I have little difficulty in expecting persons in those salary ranges to respect the fact that ... they are extremely well paid.

I represent those of us in the community who are just a little bit sick and tired of being drowned in additional higher and higher taxes that produce nothing but a clamor for more on the part of public employees whose performance in terms of services rendered and results obtained has been on a down slide for the last ten years. ...

So I say to the teachers, enough! If you want more money and you want better benefits and you want more whatever, then I suggest that you convince the public that you are performing a task and performing it with dedication, zeal and purpose. The results produced will warrant greater public sympathy. Anything less is baloney.

A poetic reply

Editor, The Times:

With a poem Freida Dimstore did try — To open the taxpayer's eye — And while writing in verse — Is necessarily terse, — I feel that I must reply.

The hours she cited are wrong — (Many others have sung the same song) — For with lessons to write — And meetings at night — Our hours are often quite long.

As to holding our tongues, indeed! — I'll never ascribe to such creed! — If Lincoln closed his mouth — Years ago in the South — The slaves would have never been freed!

If "Tending our kids," as you say — Was the reason for wanting more pay — Then I'd turn in my keys, — Let my salary freeze — And throw my credential away.

But maybe that is the reason — You spoke of the summer season. — Could it just be — That you'd like to be free — Of your kids? — No, that would be treason.

The issue here is not money. — If it were, it would really be funny. — With costs rising yearly — You can see clearly — That we'd need more than 5%, honey!

Arbitration is already here. — It was passed in a law just last year. — School boards, I might note — Helped rally the vote — SO WHY IS IT OBJECT OF FEAR?

We need help when an action we grieve — In transfers, or duty, or leave. — Neither party this way — Has the final say — And the decision is fair we receive.

Before you write poems, my dear — Lend teachers an attentive ear. — Come talk to us — The issues discuss — And our position will be more clear.

Waste of energy

Editor, The Times:

To date, the V.C.S.D. has spent $28,305 on gas and electricity to heat and maintain the pools at Cal Hi and Dublin Swim Center. On Feb. 23, the P.U.C. issued suggestion concerning the conservation of energy in regard to the heating of swimming pools, i.e., reducing to the coolest possible compatible temperature for educational conditions and that the pool be covered when not in use.

According to the V.C.S.D., the pools are used by the school swim teams and the A.A.U. at this time. It is heated to 82 degrees and remains uncovered.

In my opinion, the board of directors is not exercising proper conservation methods or good judgement in this time of energy crisis. I feel the citizens of the district should voice their disapproval of this flagrant, inexcusable waste of funds and energy.

LIGHTER TIMES

A friend of mine, Charlie Graft, ran such a low key a campaign for President last year, you probably never even heard of him. But he was in there pitching and he learned a lot about how the big money folks treat the small, independent candidate for President.

Take Lockheed, for example. They've donated thousands to candidates all over the world, but all Charlie could manage was the landing gear from a Lockheed Lodestar plane.

Over at the milk lobby, the same folks who gave thousands of dollars to Senator Hubert Humphrey of the great dairy state of Minnesota did not think much of Charlie's chances of getting elected President. They gave him a case of cream cheese.

Charlie didn't fare much better with the oil lobby. They awarded him one free oil change at the gas station of his choice.

'SAVE THE SEALS'

Dear Editor:

We the sixth grade class of Harvest Park feel that the brutal killings of Harp Seals is very cruel we would like to prevent these killings and all other cruelty to animals.

We saw a movie on it and it was very upsetting and hurt many of us, I cried because the violence was so harsh.

Some of us will be coming around with petitions and collecting money to support the fund for animals association who will be putting this money toward the prevention of the killings.

We hope you will print this in order to let those concerned and those who don't know about these killings become more interested and to open their eyes to the reality of it all.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I wonder if my husband's adjusting to his retirement properly because he doesn't seem to be going through any of the pangs others describe. He's actually happier in some ways than when he was working. The one thing that concerns me is that he isn't as manly or protective as he used to be and he expects me to do more for him. I don't mind this but my daughter and son-in-law have noticed it and are quite amazed. He tells me he just wants to relax and now I can be the boss. Is this healthy? — M.W.

DEAR M.W.: I don't see anything unhealthy about it as long as it pleases the two of you. Don't worry about the opinions of your daughter and son-in-law. Actually, by the time men reach the age of retirement, many are relieved to give up their old role. At this same time, many women are ready to become more dominant than they may have been.

According to psychologist David Gutmann, both men and women change during the middle years, not physically, but psychologically. The man who was aggressive, autonomous and self-reliant in early adulthood, usually becomes accommodating and restrained. He no longer feels the desire or the need to control.

Gutmann points out that many men don't really like all the responsibility that goes with being the breadwinner and fighter. It takes a lot of praise and social prestige to make him keep at it for 30 odd years. One incentive is what he calls, the "chronic emergency of parenthood." Being a good provider-protector usually requires a person to be competitive and aggressive just as being a source of emotional security has required a woman to be gentle, sensitive and obliging.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My family was terribly upset last month when a 14-year-old boy who lived down the block took his own life. My 13-year-old son was a friend and liked him and is shocked and depressed about the incident. Why or how could this happen to a child? Can others ever tell when someone is considering suicide? What can I do to help my son overcome his grief? — D.Y.

DEAR D.Y.: You can help your son by encouraging him to talk about his feelings for his friend so that he doesn't feel isolated in his grief. Never make him feel that it's too depressing or morbid to express the anxiety he must feel. Let him lead the way in anything he wants to discuss and don't cut him off. If you encourage and listen, time will gradually heal his wounds. Adolescent suicides are not as uncommon as some might think. In most adolescent suicides, it's the culmination of a long process, according to Dr. Joseph Teicher, director of children's and adolescents' psychiatric services for Los Angeles County. Of adolescents who attempt suicide, Dr. Teicher said, one third want to die, another third maybe want to die and a third are calling for help. For the one-third who want to die, it's a rational decision and they've made up their mind.

Suicidal children usually had experienced many separations in their lives. Separations from parents in the early years were common and often, there was a suicide in the family background. In almost all incidents Dr. Teicher studied, the biological father had disappeared and in many cases there had been more than one stepfather.

Often, suicidal youngsters or adults, for that matter, before they take action will give away possessions that are very dear to them. They may also talk about suicide or seem preoccupied with death.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can a woman shave her face like a man does or will shaving make her facial hair dark and bristly like a man's whiskers? I read that it is beneficial to the skin to shave with a blade because it removes dead skin and extraneous material. But what are the after effects of shaving for a woman?

I've tried lotions and creams for facial hair removal, but my skin breaks out terribly. Please help me. I have so much hair on my face.

DEAR READER — Shaving does not make hair any more coarse. The base of the hair is stiffer. When it is cut short, as with shaving, the base is like the stiff stubble of freshly cut coarse grass. A beard feels softer only because you feel the softer full length of the hair. As an example, a close very short crewcut will make the hair on the scalp seem stiff, but the base of the hair is no stiffer than it was before the hair was cut.

A man's whiskers are stiff in part because they are the base of the hair for his beard.

A woman has just as much hair on her face as a man. Ordinarily the hair is so fine that it cannot be seen readily. These soft, fine hairs give the impression that a woman does not have facial hair. In some women the hair is coarser and may be darker. These coarser hairs are then noticeable. Cutting these hairs will leave the short stiff base of them and whether or not they will be like a man's whiskers at evening time — the so-called five o'clock shadow — depends entirely on how coarse the hairs are in the first place, not on the shaving itself.

Shaving the skin does effectively remove oils and surface accumulation of excess cells. In people with oily faces this might be beneficial but you can accomplish about as much with good soap and a washcloth.

You should see a dermatologist. There are things that can be done for too much facial hair. In a few instances it is from hormonal influences that can be treated. A woman who is low on estrogen may develop finer, less noticeable hair with adequate hormone treatment. I hasten to add that in many cases the hormones are completely normal and additional hormones do not help at all.

In other instances electrolysis done under knowledgeable hands is very helpful. To determine what is best in any one case it is better to have a recommendation from a dermatologist who has seen your face.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Covered bridges were once common in the United States. They looked like wooden tunnels.

Covered bridges were built long ago, during the days of the horse and buggy. Some people think that the bridges were covered so that the horses would not be frightened while crossing the bridge. Actually, the wooden roof and sides sheltered the bridge from heavy snowfalls and rain and protected the wood in the bridge from rotting. Some of these covered bridges still standing today are more than 100 years old. Many can be found in Vermont and other states.

One of the longest covered bridges in the world crosses the Saint John River in Canada.

Covered bridges are not used generally today because most of them are too narrow.

"How was I to know?" groaned South.
"No way," replied North. "Machiavelli himself couldn't have used a better bit of hocus-pocus."

West had cashed the ace and king of diamonds and shifted to a spade. South had won in his own hand, led the five of hearts and finessed dummy's queen. Without a moment's hesitation East had dropped the eight spot.

South had returned to his hand with the queen of clubs in order to lead the jack of trumps. If that eight had been played from 10-8 doubleton, South would pick up the whole suit and make an overtrick. If it had been a singleton, South would lose one heart to West and make his contract. Unfortunately for South, West held the singleton and once South led the jack East was sure of two trump tricks and South's nice game had disappeared forever.

We can't absolve South completely. He had a sure-fire safety play at his disposal. He could have led a low heart instead of the jack from his hand. This would give him an overtrick if East had played the eight from 10-8-3 and would have insured the contract against any and all trump breaks.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if anyone ever won all the events at a major tournament.

Back in 1934 when there were only three events in the Eastern championships, Oswald Jacoby won the mixed with Mrs. Jacoby, Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Mrs. Geraldine Furlow, the open pairs with David Bruce and the team of four with Bruce, Schenken and Gottlieb. However that was only three events.

The man who would be champ

On Sports

They're both former club fighters from Philly, but any comparison of Jimmy Young and Sylvester Stallone's fictional Cinderella heavyweight Rocky Balboa ends there.

Sure, every sports section in America was liberally sprinkled with words like "stunning," "major boxing upset," and "rags-to-riches" after Young floored and dethroned the valley favorite George Foreman Thursday night.

But, when you take the current heavyweight situation, sift it, shake it and spill it out, Young emerges as the most logical choice to replace Muhammad Ali as champ, either through yet another keep-your-hands-off-me-Jack victory, or by acclamation upon the impending retirement of The Greatest.

Jimmy Young

This pot has been boiling a long, long time. Foreman and Ron Lyle turned on the stove last January in Las Vegas.

Lyle, a peaceful man with a bizarre temper, missed the prime years of his ring career altogether. His quicksilver personality and a teenage alliance with the wrong kids had earned him a seven-year stay in the Colorado State Pen. There, he had literally come back from death after a fellow prisoner had stirred his vital organs none too gently with a contraband shank.

After battling the Grim Reaper, Lyle would not fall prey to the legend of Foreman's lethal punches that sent Ken Norton into a foolish frenzy of fear that found him flattened within a round at Caracas.

He went on the assault and sliced up George's mouth, chin and eye and plobbered the ex-champ into a puddle of his own blood and saliva twice in the fourth round, before Foreman's "Heart of a Lion" carried him off the canvas to a fifth round KO.

And back on the East Coast, Jimmy Young, who looks and acts like the kind of clean-cut kid you'd want for a son-in-law, was foraging through the forests of Charlie Polites, Chuck Wepners and Pedro Lovells for the occasional paycheck that could do more than pay a month's car note.

Then came April 30.

That evening, thousands of confirmed channel-switching jock snufflers pushed aside the remains of their leftover spaghetti and spinach souffle to gawk at a pair of astonishing sights.

The first was trivial compared to the other. On channel 2, there was Rick Barry, standing stock still at the edge of the key, hands on knees, while the Valley of the Sun roared Phoenix to its turn-around sixth game win over Golden State in the Western Conference finals.

But, hey, what was going on over here on 7 for Chrissakes. Ali's bum of the month wasn't going down. In fact, he was making the erstwhile Mr. Clay look pretty damn foolish.

Not that Jimmy Young was hitting the champ—he wasn't, and it would cost him the decision and several more months of stalking the crown.

Trouble was, Ali couldn't hit Young either. The guy was the Ty Cobb of prize-fighting, taking advantage of every nook and cranny of the Marquis de Queensbury's set of instructions.

Backpedaling away from the slightest hint of danger, dancing Ali around in a frustrating series of clinches and dipping his head through the ropes to force a break any time Muhammad hemmed him in.

When the decision came booming out from the center of the ring, the Capital Centre crowd howled in angry disbelief and Young slapped a glove to his temple in an expression of pained surprise that no doubt won a prize for the wire service photographer who captured it.

Yet, all Young could glean from his moral victory was a San Francisco rematch with Lyle, whom he'd beaten the summer before in Honolulu's HIC arena.

Again, the ponderous Lyle sought to club down his foe and right his foundering career. Young glibly predicted an eighth round knockout.

Lyle arrived on the ring steps wearing an I-wish-I-didn't-give-a-bleep smirk, and after the nationally televised bout, he was still wearing it.

Neither man was hurt and neither went down—officially.

Young, trying to get inside to Lyle's body while somehow keeping covered from belt to forehead himself, incited a series of time-consuming clinches.

He let out a high-pitched yelp with each of his

Scrappy Sentinels fall, 4-2

Unable to notch the equalizer on one too many occasions, the Livermore Sentinels dropped out of the State Cup Under-19 soccer tournament with a disheartening 4-2 loss to well stacked Santa Clara at Livermore's Joe Michell School yesterday.

Another Valley team in the State Cup, tourney, Ballistic United, played yesterday in Centerville against the Fremont Apollos in second round action of the grueling five game, single elimination tournament.

The "junior" Broncos, aptly named, jumped out to a 2-0 lead and held off numerous scrappy Livermore rallies in the second half to secure the win.

With the exception of two high school players, every player on the Broncos also played on the Santa Clara University Freshman team, which is coached by the same man as the Under-19 team, Dave Chaplik.

Chaplik was yellow-carded after a brief verbal confrontation with the referees late in the second half of the game, but his questioning inquiries did little to stop the aggressive Broncos from taking the contest.

With five minutes gone into the game, Junior National Under-19 all-stars Scott Douglas and Rick Davis combined on a goal. Douglas headed off a 25-yard indirect kick from Davis right past Livermore goalie Pete Howard for a 1-0 edge.

Just minutes before the half ended, Tony Maggio scored again for the winners, taking a pass from Dave Benton and going in for the goal.

But the Sentinels came back right before the half-time whistle after taking advantage of a long downfield pass.

Manzar Iqbal picked up the dribble and raced downfield, firing a left footed pass to Mike Miller, who was waiting right at the goal to poke the ball through.

Santa Clara again scored first in the second half, getting a fine boot from Tony Maggio, who took a pass from Miguel Avila. Maggio's boot sliced off of Livermore defenders' Billy Hunt and Jim Lennon, the latter being hit right in the chin with the ball.

The Sentinels scored again, though, after missing many easy opportunities to tie the game before Maggio's goal, including a wide-open shot at the goal by Miller.

This time, though, tiny Robert Turpin passed out of the deep flat to halfback Kevin Burke, who streaked a high shot over the head of SC goalie Dave Reynolds, who had no chance at the ball.

It was Reynolds who made two diving saves to keep the Sentinels from tying the game twice in the second half.

The Broncos added a penalty kick from Davis seconds before the end of the contest for the final margin.

Walks hurt

DVC belts Chabot

HAYWARD — Chabot pitchers Mike Bungatz and Steve Ward gave up nine walks as the Gladiators dropped a 7-3 decision to visiting Diablo Valley yesterday in Golden Gate Conference baseball action here.

The Gladiators, now 1-5 in GGC action, never led in the game.

Diablo Valley took a 1-0 lead in the third inning. After Jim Saunders grounded out, Willie McGee singled but was tagged out on a pickoff attempt. However, Jim Flores walked and advanced to second on a passed ball. John Raeside then drove in Flores with the first of his four hits, a liner to center.

The big blow for the Vikings came in the sixth stanza, however.

After Flores popped out to shortstop Tom Castro, Raeside singled, went to second on a passed ball and leftfielder Gerald Price walked. Then Mike Donnelly slammed a shot over the center field wall 375 feet away to give Diablo Valley a 4-0 lead.

The Vikings added one run in the seventh on singles by Flores, Raeside and Donnelly.

Chabot did not quite, however, and came back to score three times in the eighth to threaten the DVC lead.

After left fielder Allan Regier struck out, Dan Pearson walked and designated hitter Bob Jensen doubled him home. Dan Randle walked and Ed Trevino singled, bringing in Jensen. A sacrifice fly to center by Randy LaRocca brought in Randle with the Glads' final run.

The Vikings added two insurance runs in the ninth.

Saunders and McGee each singled to open the inning. A passed ball brought Saunders in with the sixth run and Raeside's sacrifice fly scored McGee.

Viking starter Bob Flynn went the distance, allowing nine hits and striking out seven batters. Bungatz went six innings, allowing five hits and striking out three batters. Ward fanned one batter and didn't allow a walk.

Center Cedric Maxwell led the Charlotte attack with 25 points, 13 rebounds, and also bringing the ball upcourt against the aggressive Michigan defense.

Michigan upset

Top-ranked Michigan was upset by North Carolina - Charlotte 75-68 in the Midwest Regional final of the NCAA basketball championships yesterday.

North Carolina and Marquette also earned berths in the NCAA semi-final next week at Atlanta.

North Carolina raced to a big first-half lead and then held off Kentucky 79-72 in the East Regional. Marquette rallied to topple Wake Forest 82-68 in the Midwest Regional.

Center Cedric Maxwell led the Charlotte attack with 25 points, 13 rebounds, and also bringing the ball upcourt against the aggressive Michigan defense.

Don swimmers star

HAYWARD — Amador Valley High School's swimming team dominated the Pacific Relays at Chabot College here yesterday.

Although no team scoring was kept the Dons led the competition easily.

Amador Valley won five events, more than any other school in the 18-team field.

The Dons sets records in the four-man 200-yard relay and the breaststroke relay. Amador's breaststroke team of Brian Story, Bill Burns and Jeff Mooney swam to a 1:29.5 clocking, breaking their own mark of 1:33.0.

Tom Boldry, Story, Edmond Carter and Mark Allen set the four-man 200-yard relay mark with a 1:45.9 time, breaking the old record of 1:47.1.

Other Don first places came in the two-man endurance relay, the five-man mile relay and the four-man 850-yard progressive relay.

Dan Knauer and Kevin Kurtz teamed for the first place in the endurance event with a 3:23.0. The mile relay team of Knauer, Bruce Parraguirre, Kurtz, Burns and Story clocked a 15:01.0.

Amador also took a second in the four-man

400-yard individual medley relay with a 4:03.9 time. Kurtz, Tom Wilson, Carter and Rick Bota made up the team.

Amador was also third in the five-man oddball relay.

Granada also performed well at the meet, taking a second in the progressive relay and third in the mile relay. Livermore was third in the progressive relay.

Smith LP winner

Doug Smith won the 18-hole "points" tournament at Las Positas Men's Golf Club yesterday.

Jack Boyle finished second. Bill Kleck, Leon Friggada, and Dick Braden all tied for third.

Ken Gertz, Jim Glaze, Raul Ynzumza, Bob Skevington, Clay Bryant and

Robert Taylor tied for fourth place.

Today 46 players will attempt to qualify for the four-man team representing Las Positas at the Northern California Golf Association Team Championships to be held next month at Spyglass Hill on the Monterey Peninsula.

Amador edged in nine-inning contest, 4-3

Bob Fudenna laid down a run-scoring squeeze bunt with one out in the ninth inning to give Washington High School of Fremont a 4-3 extra-inning win over the Amador Valley Dons in non-league baseball Friday in Fremont.

In other games involving East Bay Athletic League teams, Livermore blanked Liberty 6-0, California fell to Mt. Diablo 6-1, Granada defeated Pacific, 3-1 and Dublin edged Fremont, 6-5.

Toby Andrews permitted Amador 10 hits, but held them to one base on balls and two earned runs to pick up the win, while Don reliever Curt Hall took the loss.

First baseman Sam Jorgensen wielded heavy lumber for Amador, cracking out four singles while substitute center fielder Chris DePrater had two neatly executed sacrifice bunts.

The first Don to come to bat scored to put Amador up right off the bat. Bill Bevilacqua singled, moved up on a sacrifice by Mike Connolly and scored when Rob Wicks grounder scooted through Husky first baseman Brian Cesar's legs for an error.

Washington took the lead in the third, Hall's first inning in relief of Wicks, who struck out four, walked two and gave up a triple to Ken Stange in two innings of work.

Steve Waller walked and, one out later, went to third on a single by Fudenna and scored when designated hitter Kevin Meaney cleared the sacks with a triple to deep left field.

The Huskies added a run to the lead in the fifth as John Born was safe on an error by Wicks, the stand-out pitcher's fourth in ten innings at shortstop, and scored after the last of three walks given up by Hall in the frame.

Amador narrowed the gap to one in the sixth when Wicks singled to right and Gene Stanley belted a towering triple to left on the first pitch from Andrews.

The Dons sent the game into overtime in the seventh, thanks to the play of a group of subs.

Jorgensen led off with a looper to left for a single and DePrater bunted him to second. Hall walked, but Rick Garcia batted into a fielder's choice, leaving the runners at first and second.

But, Scott Vaughn, at bat for only the second time this season, smacked a single to right to bring in Hall and set the stage for Washington's top two innings later.

Livermore played its third game in three days when it took on the host Lions but Jeff Benton and Jeff Perry combined to pitch a two-hitter for the Pokes.

The Cowboys had faced left-handed pitchers the two previous games but this time went up against a right-hander, Hal McCauley, and pounded out eight hits.

"Playing three games in a row on a high school pitching staff, you've got to use everybody you've got," explained "Poke" coach Kevin Drake, who sent the two returning veterans to the mound even though both had labored quite a distance just 48 hours earlier.

But while the Cowboys had been losing games, the pitching was there all along. Friday, they finally received much-needed help, the big blows being Cary Dean's pair of doubles and Jeff Bernacil's towering triple.

Bob Tarte and John Bachleda each had a pair of hits, while Greg Palmer laced an RBI single as the "Pokes" found a lot of hitting strength in the bottom of the lineup.

Livermore's pitchers have now given up just nine hits in three games, using all five pitchers on the staff.

"It was just a matter of getting the hits during a game," Drake said. "Only until you get hits in a game situation will it boost your confidence."

"We're still striking out a lot," added Drake, "but we put the ball in play a little more today."

Liberty failed to send a runner past second base until the seventh inning and posted just four baserunners in the contest. It wasn't until the sixth inning before they even got a man to second base.

The Cowboys meanwhile, struck for three runs in the second on a walk to Rick Gildea, Tarte's single, and a triple by Bernacil, who came home the Lions threw away Bachleda's bunt single.

Dean's leadoff double, combined with another Lion throwing error on a ground ball by Tarte, netted the "Pokes" fourth run while another Dean two-bagger and singles by Tarte, Bachleda and Palmer scored the final two Livermore runs.

Kevin Gosney won the game for Granada with one swing of the bat in the fourth inning.

After Mark Davis and Vance Rushing each singled Gosney smashed a three-run homer over the left field wall 350 feet away at the San Leandro City ball park.

After that Gosney and Davis set the hosts down until the final inning.

After Jeff Perez and Ken Johnson walked to open Pacific's half of the inning Bob Parness came in to relieve Davis and cinched the win as he got Joe Hotel on a fielders choice (scoring Perez) and striking out Dave Mendez.

Gosney started the game for the Matadors and allowed three hits in the first four innings. Davis relieved him and allowed but one hit in two innings and struck out four batters.

Granada coach Dennis Berger was pleased as his team evened its non-league mark at 1-1.

"I think our pitching is coming along really well," he said. Davis and Gosney are juniors. Also I like the way our defense has improved."

Mt. Diablo shocked California (which was rated second in the East Bay) by pounding 10 hits to just three for the Grizzlies.

California used three pitchers. Bret Cary started and lasted two innings before giving way to Larry Walters. Chuck Cary relieved Walters to finish the contest.

Sean Mays belted a two-run single in the last of the seventh to give Dublin its win over the Tigers. Mays' hit, a liner into left field, scored tying runner Paul Gordon from third and winning score Gary Rader from second.

Rader reached first on a catcher's interference call by the umpire. Rader was trying to bunt the ball on a suicide squeeze attempt when the Fremont catcher stepped in front of him and was called for interference.

Fremont took a 4-3 lead after two innings, during which the two starting pitchers walked 11 batters. The Gaels tied the game in the fifth on two walks and a throwing error.

The EBAL season opens Tuesday with California at Granada, Livermore at San Ramon, Monte Vista at Amador Valley, and Dublin at Foothill. All games will start at 3:30.

Mr. Nybank builds his dream house

By BOB NOREK
Real Estate Editor

MARTINEZ — Many young couples dream of a deluxe home, high on a hill, overlooking a beautiful valley.

Unfortunately for a majority of these couples, this dream home fades under the hot rays of economics.

However, this is not the case for Steve and Cindy Nybank. Nybank did not allow this dream to fade. He seized the opportunity to build his dream home. He did and virtually with his own hands!

The law enforcement officer says, "The home we wanted would be impossible for us using conventional means. We could barely afford such a home using our own labor."

So he built it himself. "This is my artistic monument," Nybank says.

So after studying various home plans in books, Nybank sold his tract home and purchased a hilltop lot off Reliez Valley Road. The lot set back the Nybanks $20,000. And before it would be complete, the dream redwood home would cost $80,000 in building materials and labor.

Nybank recalls the Martinez city planning staff was "very helpful" when he presented his plans and concept of the home.

"Staff members were always ready to help and make suggestions to improve the plan and help me," Nybank says.

Then the work began. For seven months, Nybank, Cindy, then pregnant, his family and friends labored long hours under the sun and the moon to build the 2,510 - square - foot dream home.

Nybank worked the swing shift so that he could have the benefit of the daylight hours. He emphasizes that all work occurred during off duty hours and weekends.

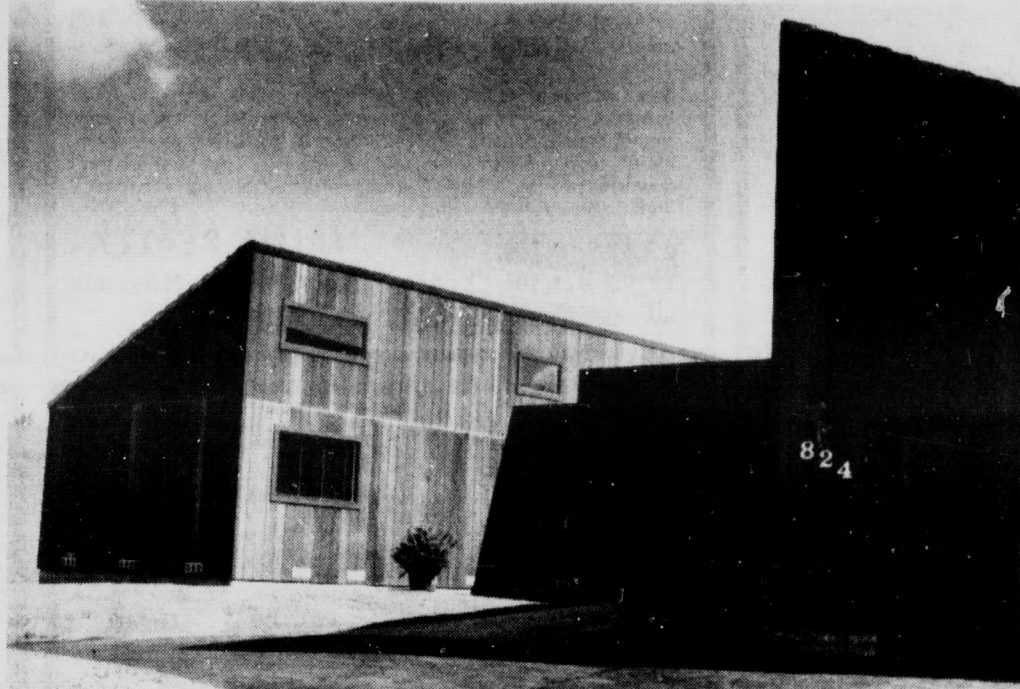

Nybank, who had no past building experience, says that at times he had the feeling that he might be taking on too much.

"I had to re-evaluate my goals, remember the sacrifices we were making (the Nybanks hocked almost all they owned to pay the construction costs) and then continued to hammer away."

Not only did Nybank do his own hammering, he also picked every piece of lumber, with few exceptions, that went into the construction of the home. The 44,000 feet of lumber (he hauled the majority of it in his station wagon) is Number One Select wood.

The project gave him blisters, sore muscles, bruises (from a 23-foot fall) and a great appreciation of his own labor.

Nybank says their home is a quality home. He adds that in many areas the home construction went beyond building code regulations. Quality materials were used and the structure surpasses code requirements.

The Nybank home features 10 rooms, three bedrooms, three baths, tile roof and a two-car garage with a stop area. Other quality items in the home are a silver-plated fireplace, imported tile and windows from Germany.

The master bedroom has a six-foot circular window and all the in the home is bronze optically polished crystal. The interior walls sound insulated. The living-room features a sunken wet bar and the silver-plated fireplace.

The home also has a fire-

Great View Of Valley

place in the kitchen/dining area and there is a barbecue pit on the deck. The dream residence has a 400-foot elevation over the valley with a panoramic view of the Diablo Valley and Mount Diablo.

The Nybanks have been living in their dream for three months. However, they are destined to move. The home, which according to Nybank, has a value of between $160,000 and $170,000, is up for sale. Silver Real Estate, Walnut Creek, is the agent.

Why would Nybank after all his work, sell his dream? Because he wants an airplane.

The 28-year-old police officer explains, "I have always wanted to own my own airplane. While he was laboring under the hot sun, high in the cool blue sky airplanes approaching Buchanan Field passed over him.

The desire to own a plane became too great and soon will, hopefully, be satisfied.

The Nybanks plan to stay in the area since they love their little valley's climate. Nybank says they will purchase a tract home nearby.

And in the future, Nybank hopes to once again own a hilltop and design and build his own quality custom home.

"It will not be like this one, since this home has one-in-a-kind features. I am thinking of a heavy Spanish-style home."

If it happens, you can bet Steve Nybank again will be hammering away!

The Nybanks look to Mount Diablo through the master bedroom's six - foot circular window. The two other bedrooms are occupied by their son and daughter.

ALLIED BROKERS

SEE 6621 Via San Blas-Pleasanton
Call Jim Putt 846-8116

by Pat Schnerf

Q. I recently purchased a home on speculation with the intention of quickly selling it for a reasonable profit. The sellers moved out promptly at the close of escrow. To off set expenses of the home while it was vacant I allowed a friend to rent it for a month while their new home was being completed, with the understanding that they allow me to show it to prospective buyers. Everything was agreed upon. Now, however, they are refusing to allow me to show the home, and are also not letting a repair man in to make some corrections which will make the home more saleable. And, since the original arrangement was as much to my financial benefit as it was to their convenience, I agreed to charge only half the amount of the actual payment on the house. Their action is denying me opportunity to sell it, plus I don't like the loss on the rent, can I legally evict them? And I can evict them...how? F.H. Pleasanton

A. Thank you, I thought I was the only one who ever did anything stupid like that. What can you do now? Probably nothing, quick enough to avert financial loss. What does your rental agreement say about showing the property. Sounds like a verbal agreement, if so grin and bear it until they move out. If the agreement is in writing, then abide by that understanding and take whatever steps the rental calls for, hopefully with the tenant paying the attorneys fees. In the future I would recommend for short occupancies using a license agreement thereby avoiding the formality and sometimes lengthy procedures of eviction.

Q. We have a cabin near Arnold California, which we rent out most of the year. We spend several weeks a year at the cabin, plus a couple of weekends. We also let close friends use it from time to time. We have been advised now that the time we let friends stay at the cabin is counted toward the maximum amount of "personal use" we are permitted before business deductions attributable to the rental expenses are limited under the new law. Is this correct? B.G. Dublin

A. Yes, it does count. The new rule states that if you rent out your vacation home, business deductions will be limited to those expenses attributable to actual rental time if the personal use of the home exceeds 14 days, or 10 per cent of the actual rental time. Letting friends use the cabin free is counted against your personal use time. You should consult your tax man for a detailed explanation. On the bright side however, now you have an honest excuse for saying no to those not so good friends. ## Part-time job with United his success

Combining a full-time job with a part-time career with United California Brokers is proving a successful combination for Gary Moylan, winner of the "January Salesperson of Month" award for the real estate brokerage firm's Dublin office.

Moylan, who has had a real estate license for eight years, put it to use when he joined United California Brokers five months ago at the urging of a friend in the East Bay general contracting business. Since joining the firm Moylan has specialized in scouting properties for general contractors and handling the sales of custom-built homes. Now associated with UCB's Danville office, he is working on plans for a $1.5 million project to develop 37 acres in Walnut Creek into custom-built homes on minimum one-acre lots.

A resident of Pleasanton, Moylan is married and has two children and enjoys golfing and water skiing. He is a native of Oakland and was formerly with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Convention set

The International Real Estate Exchanging Convention, with over 100 exchange clubs participating from throughout the United States will begin March 27th for one week at the Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas.

Over 200 properties worth more than $50 million will be offered for exchange, almost double last year's production due to the dramatic increase in the number of Realtors now aware of how to structure tax-free exchanges.

Top real estate authorities from all areas of the country will lead daily discussions on new techniques relating to the art of exchanging and on current tax aspects explaining the tax advantages that are realized through exchanging rather than selling one's property.

This 5th annual event is sponsored by the Real Estate News Observer.

Pupils model missions — eat one

LIVERMORE — Noel Ekstrom didn't win any prizes for his model of a mission, but all his fourth-grade classmates ungrudgingly agreed it was the best of anybody's.

It was made of white cake with white frosting trimmed in bright colors. "Since it was a mission, maybe he should have used devil's food cake," a classmate suggested mischievously.

Having been consumed on the spot, Noel's was the one model not on display Friday when the nine-year-olds in Arroyo Mocho School classes taught by Carol Clark and Pat Calvert learned who won a contest climaxing their study of missions.

"Overall Best" prize went to Barbie Haskins for her rendition of Mission Santa Barbara. "Most Detailed" was Mission San Juan Baptista by Todd Bouris — who made tiny loaves of bread, built an inch-square cart out of fine twigs and installed a pocket-mirror pool surrounded by plastic ducks in the mission courtyard.

"Most Realistic" was Chris Chakires and Chris Funk's model of Mission San Juan. Saville Bray and Lisa Chandler's large plaster-and-wood copy of Carmel Mission was dubbed "Most Original," along with Laura Sherman's model of Mission Santa Barbara.

The Times' own nomination for "Most Outrageous" goes to Marc Groves and Boyd Bangerter for the graveyard of their Mission San Jose. The cemetery features excellent clay models of tombstones, statues and monuments.

One grave is labeled for the founder of Livermore, Robert Livermore. The rest are marked with the names of teachers and classmates.

"Best Sport" award goes to Donald Bloom and John Petuoglu for their "Mission

San Francisco De Sonoma De Solano After the Earthquake."

Their painstakingly fashioned clay building collapsed, they said, after "kids poked it." So they added "After the Earthquake" to the label.

"Most Inventive" award surely belongs to Eric Fink and Ricky Rhodes, creators of a mission whose roof is made of lasagna strips painted dark red and surprisingly resembling tiles. An Indian made of peanut shells and bits of white cloth is pulling a bell rope attached to a "mission bell" fashioned from the end of a flashlight covered with tinfoil.

Julie Dover cut up an old binder cover to put a roof and front steps on her careful Mission San Rafael. A china rabbit and dog lounge in the shade of the mulberry twigs.

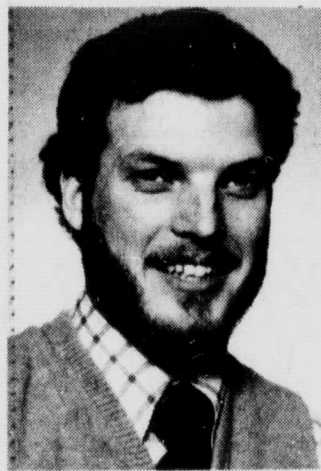

Sugar cubes became building blocks, feathers turned into palm fronds, plum-tree blossoms framed a church door and popsicle sticks became roof tiles as students strained to find scaled-down materials for their project.

As part of their study of California history, the fourth graders read about missions and discussed why they were built, and in some cases went to visit some with their families. A field trip to Ft. Point in San Francisco, an example of Spanish architecture like the missions, culminated their project.

Parents should contact the district office, 837-1511, ext. 229, for further registration information.

A parent effectiveness training class is coming to the San Ramon Valley Unified School District area.

The 24-hour training program, based on the belief that between parents and children there is an immense potential for mutual love, care, understanding, growth and self-actualization, will begin Monday, April 18 at the San Ramon Valley United Methodist Church.

The eight-week course will meet once a week at 7:30 p.m. for a three-hour session to help parents develop the ability to listen so children will share their problems; to talk so children will respect the parent's needs and values; to avoid power struggles, rebellion, and resentment; and to prevent and change unacceptable behavior from children.

Cost to parents for the course is $65 per person or $100 per couple, and college credit is available. William W. Hearon will be the course instructor. He is a licensed parent effectiveness training instructor with a background in transactional analysis and Gestalt Therapy.

For further information about the course call Effective Dynamics, 689-9481.

as he plays classical Indian instruments*

Nadabrahmananda is coming to town

How many 81-year-olds do you now who bounce out of bed at 3 a.m., go all day without a nap and turn in long after midnight? Swami Nadabrahmananda is a very special 81-year-old, who can also perform such feats as holding his breath for 30 minutes — not seconds — remain unblinking for an unlimited period of time and best of all, can sing through his ears!

Skeptics may witness this phenomena for themselves when the spritely yoga master visits Pleasanton Sunday, March 27 for a concert of Indian classical music at the Veterans Memorial Building at 7:30 p.m. The program is sponsored by the Pleasanton Dept. of Human Resources and Recreation and Carol Pitts, a valley resident who takes music lessons from the Swami.

The musician was born in 1896 in southern India and began his formal musical training at 20. Over the years he developed intense bodily control and concentration through frequent fasts and seclusions. As his fame spread throughout the vast country, he was appointed court musician for the Maharaja of Mysore State.

In 1950, in accordance with Indian religious tradition, Swami Nadabrahmananda retired and took the vows of a "sannyasin," or swami. The monk joined the ashram (commune) of Swami Sivananda, who inspired him to combine music with yogic disciplines. "I am the first one to do this," the youthful senior citizen points out.

Although the out-going swami does speak English, he sometimes finds it difficult to explain the complicated forms of yoga that he uses so easily. Serving as interpreter is 24-year-old Parvati, an American who has studied under the Swami for two years. Because she has traveled extensively with Swami Nadabrahmananda, Parvati (whose name was suggested by an Indian chiropractor) knows him almost as well as he knows himself.

"I cook his vegetarian meals for him, too," says his dark haired companion, adding she can hardly keep up with the swami's pace. "Sometimes I get to take a nap in the middle of the day," she laughs.

Swami Nadabrahmananda has been in the United States for several months, teaching both classical Indian music and Nada Yoga, which develops mind control. Sponsored on his travels by The Divine Life Society, which also has a headquarters in San Francisco, the energetic seer conducts classes over 12 hours a day, interspersed with concentrated music practice on the tabla (drums), harmonium or a 32 string instrument he invented himself, the swarnadala. "If I get a few minutes of his time for a lesson in Hindi or on the tabla," sighs Parvati, "I feel lucky."

But she doesn't really begrudge the time her teacher gives to others "because he's so pure that it reflects through all of his life." Parvati also claims that the average student can play the tabla after a few lessons, something she attributes to the Swami's "unique genius for teaching quickly."

What doesn't come easily to many is Bakhti Yoga, the devotional music that the Swami has developed into a technique that has brought scientists and doctors flocking to him for years. The Swami's abilities to control the rate and location of sound vibrations in his body have been the basis for many experiments in laboratories throughout India and the West.

Not only that, but the musician is able to synchronize his voice with complex rapid note changes and direct sound vibrations so that they emanate from points in the mouth, nose, skull and spine. Another example of his remarkable yogic control is his ability to suspend his breathing and not blink his eyes while playing the tabla for half an hour.

In one test before a gathering of political and Skeptics who don't their breath believe anyone can hold for 30 minutes are welcome to meet 81-year-old Swami Nadabrahmananda, an Indian who has combined music with yogic disciplines. Parvati, an American who has studied under the Swami, will accompany him at his March 27 performance of classical Indian music. (Photo by Carol Pitts)

Together Parvati and Swami Nadabrahmananda will present an evening full of Mantra chants, Bhajan devotional hymns, the vibrating Taans — and he promises to hold his breath! A donation of $2 will be accepted at the door, which will go towards a fund in India for lepers and general hospital treatment.

Anyone wishing to contact the Swami may call the International Sivananda Yoga Community in San Francisco at 564-2497.

Teens plan 52-hour dance marathon at Dublin

It's The Bump! Snoopy brushes up on the latest steps with Juniorette Kathy Nielson in preparation for the big 52-hour dance marathon at Dublin High April 1, 2 and 3.

An energetic group of teens, known as the Snoopy Juniorettes of Dublin, are tackling a service project of amazing proportions again this year — the 52-hour "Dance for Those Who Can't" marathon coming April 1, 2 and 3.

Only 26 in number, the Juniorettes raised $3,400 last year with the marathon and are hoping to top that donation to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Ten rock bands have volunteered to provide live music for the marathon, and Bay Area celebrities will emcee the three-day dance in shifts at Dublin High School. The Juniorettes are now looking for adults (18 years or older) to chaperon the event, and medical personnel to stand by on the sidelines in case of emergency. Call Chairman Kimber Lundy at 828-8474 to help.

If you have an official-looking uniform and would like to volunteer as a security person for the marathon, call Kim, or Kathy Nielson, at 828-3381. Military persons or members of fire and police departments are qualified for the task.

In the meantime, the Juniorettes are recruiting dancers 14 years of age or older for the marathon. A complete information packet, with rules and sponsorship forms, is available by writing to the Juniorettes at P.O. Box 884, or by calling Kimber at 828-8474.

Trophies will be awarded to couples who outdance the crowd and raise the most money for muscular dystrophy. Participants also have the opportunity to win a passle of prizes that includes a Jerry Lewis watch, pizzas, records, tennis shoes and gift certificates. The Juniorettes promise free refreshments, and a generous number of breaks for the dancers.

Money is earned for the MDA through a sponsor-system, with dancers collecting pledges from supporters to a donation for each hour danced, up to 52 hours. The marathon begins at 4 p.m. Friday and continues until 8 p.m. Sunday.

Coordinators for the event are Kimber Lundy and Mary Wilson. They are assisted by committee chairmen Kathy Nielsen, food;

Kim Nelson, bands; Crystal Burton, decorations; Debbie Cool, prizes; Paula Meadows, security; Chris Scheiern and Barbara Sharp, medical; and Kim and Kathy Nelson, chaperones.

The Juniorettes are sponsored by the Dublin-San Ramon Junior Women's Club.

Times
Lifestyle

The Livermore Soroptimists will raise money for a variety of community service projects, including an annual girls' soccer tournament, with a luncheon Tuesday, March 22 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Livermore Recreation Center, Eighth and H Streets. The traditional menu of meat loaf, salads, french bread, homemade desserts and beverages will be served for $3 per person, $2 for senior citizens. Looking over the fine set of soccer trophies recently donated by the club are Jean Boehm, soccer league representative, and Joanne DeHart, a Soroptimist. The club also offers ongoing support for senior citizen programs, and vocational training awards.

Juniors host public forum on mental health

Bio-feedback and family communication skills are just a few examples of the broad range of topics to be covered in a Mental Health Forum tomorrow night at the Century House in Pleasanton.

The Pleasanton Junior Women's Club sponsors the 7:30 p.m. program, featuring three Bay Area therapists, as a free public service.

Speakers will be Dr. Stanley D. Rubenstein, Dr. Anthony L. Bitting and Kathleen Levdar.

Dr. Rubenstein is a clinical consultant with the Youth Services Center of Fremont, and has served five years as staff psychologist with the Tri-City Mental Health Clinic and Washington Township Counseling Service of Fremont. He is also a therapist for Fremont Counseling and Psychotherapy Associates.

Dr. Bitting has seven years experience as a school psychologist, as a marriage/family/child therapist, and as a social worker with psychiatric patients. In addition to advanced training at the Family Therapy Institute of Marin, he is experienced in the use of meditation and bio-feedback in the treatment of stress.

Ms. Levdar is a licensed marriage/family/child therapist. Her eight years experience as a school psychologist includes the teaching of special children of all ages. Her main area of expertise lies in the handling of alienated youth, and re-establishment of communications in troubled families.

Are lawsuits for you?

Because Jeanne Stolz still remembers her dismay at the legal terminology and baffling paperwork that greeted her in her first legal secretarial job, she has organized a class through Pleasanton's adult education program for others interested in pursuing the same career.

Beginning Monday, March 21 at Amador Valley High School, the ten week course will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. A member of Southern Alameda County Legal Secretaries Assoc., Ms. Stolz will introduce students to what a law office expects regarding everything from demeanor to typing skills.

Students are required to have average typing and shorthand skills, and Ms. Stolz will go on from there to demonstrate the proper way to file lawsuits, prepare wills and how a court operates.

"I always wanted to teach a class for women who wanted to learn the first thing about being a legal secretary," says Ms. Stolz, who recalls a class she enrolled in being "way over my head."

The legal secretary is excited about her job, which she describes as "pressure-packed, with things peaking at the same time." The challenging job requires learning how to organize your day around the work, she adds, on top of handling clients in and out of the office.

Ms. Stolz hopes the class will prepare potential legal secretaries for the possibility of taking an exam, given nationally each year, which covers topics ranging from human relations to accounting.

Textiles the topic

Bea Lopez, a textile expert for Mexican Museum in San Francisco, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Del Valle Home Economists. The public is invited to the Tuesday, March 29 meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the conference room at the Livermore Public Library.

Ms. Lopez will give a slide presentation covering trends in Latin American and domestic creative textiles.

Cooking class

Tired of sending out for Chinese food? Learn the basics at Barbara Chau's beginning Chinese cooking class, beginning Monday, March 21 at 7:30 p.m. Among the classic dishes you'll learn how to cook yourself will be barbecued pork and fried rice. Call Barbara at 443-4522 for details.

Parental stress hub offers aid

You've had a hard day at work, you pick up the three-year-old at the babysitter's, he throws his toys at you in the car all the way home and no sooner is he in the front door than he smashes you only decent lamp.

Time to straighten the little brat out with a good beating? Most everyone has felt that way, maybe pretty frequently. It's called "parental stress" — being under more pressure than anyone should have to endure.

And an organization called "Parental Stress Service, Inc." is opening in the Valley to offer alternatives for angry, frustrated parents.

Barbara Tuch, a social worker and mother of two, is in charge of the new branch of the Oakland-based, six-year-old organization.

For the past year, Valley residents have had available a toll-free number to call the Oakland office. Now, they can call the 462-4141 crisis line (or 462-5151 on business) and get someone in the new Pleasanton office at 4361 Railroad Ave.

What's Parental Stress Service for?

At present, says Tuch, the 24-hour crisis line and a speakers' bureau will be the two functions of the Pleasanton office. Speakers will publicize Parental Stress work to the community. The phone line is for parents whose kids are "driving them bananas." Or for people who simply want more information on discipline, counseling, child care.

"Sometimes," says Barbara, "a person — usually it's the mother — will just rush out of the room, slam the door and call us, instead of beating the child."

Barbara Tuch — sympathetic listener

Does it bother her to talk to potential child abusers? "I have two kids. I know what it's like."

"We find that once people call us, they often call us back because we're non-judgmental," Carol Johnston, executive director, began the service in Oakland in 1972 as a private voluntary agency after becoming horrified at the way she had abused her two-year-old son in a fit of anger.

The crisis line is also for people who feel their neighbors or relatives are abusing or neglecting their children.

They have a referral list of counselors, day-care centers and other types of help that may be needed by the caller.

The project is funded through county revenue sharing funds, the Alameda County Mental Health program and individual donations and grants. Parental Stress offices in Oakland, Union City and Pleasanton have a total 14 paid staff members and 100 volunteers.

The Valley office opened two weeks ago in the office complex shared by Hotline / Project AIRE and the Pleasanton Health Care Center. Barbara is still pulling nails out of the walls, trying to get the carpet clean and hoping someone will donate a few good pieces of office furniture — mainly bookshelves, a desk and chairs.

She also needs volunteers to answer the crisis line. Parental Stress offers a 30-hour volunteer training course in "sympathetic listening" skills before anyone is "put on the line."

In the future, the local office will also offer parents' discussion groups, free babysitting to relieve overworked parents for a few hours, and home visits by trained volunteers.
